

MR. FELLOWS SPEAKS

Denies that He Is Guilty and Points to His Big Majority.

The Defense Now Has the Call on Witnesses.

What Commissioner Linton Says He Will Do with the Report.

It was concluded by those interested in the investigation of the District-Attorney's office that to-day would be the last of the session. Commissioner Linton is having all the testimony typewritten for presentation to the Governor. He stated this morning that he would submit his findings as soon as possible. That the Governor is interested in the investigation is shown by the fact that he receives transcripts from the stenographer's minutes each day. He has, therefore, had time to consider all the proceedings except those of yesterday.

When Commissioner Linton went on the bench he was joined by Judge Martine, whom Attorney McCurdy had sworn.

Before Judge Martine testified, Attorney Otto Irving Wise said he appeared for Carl L. Lowenstein, one of the German-American Reform Union Five.

Judge Martine testified that there is a distinction between bail and prison cases and that the latter are tried first, because if they were not, the prison would be inadequate.

"Do you find that the business of the courts is of an increased nature?" "Certainly not," said Mr. McCurdy.

"From your experience, do you think it feasible, taking into consideration the limited force in the District-Attorney's office and the constitution of the courts, to try all of the bail cases, all of the prison cases?"

"In my judgment, no." "Do you find that many more indictments are found now than in previous years?" asked ex-Judge Van Hoesen on cross-examination.

"Believe not," was the answer. "Do you remember in 1891 writing a letter in which you expressed your opinion that the judicial force was adequate?" "I do," said Judge Martine.

"Then you have changed your opinion since 1891?" "Not at all. That letter was one in which all the judges united and I yielded my opinion to my associates in order that a plan they had in view might be tried."

"Then you are still in favor of a new court?" "I have always been." "How often have you journaled court in the last few years?" "Twice that I can remember."

"How often have motions been made for dismissal by lawyers on the ground that the District-Attorney had failed to bring them to trial?" "At least once."

"On redirect examination Judge Martine explained the occasions on which his court had been adjourned for lack of business. The District-Attorney, of course, is responsible. He said, also, that while he is in favor of a fourth part all his associates are opposed to it."

Recorder Smyth came in just then, and Col. Fellows went to him and his hands. They remained in consultation for several minutes.

The Judge said he would estimate that the proportion of prison to jail cases are 10 to 1.

Recorder Smyth was called next. "How many occasions in 1894 have there been," asked Mr. McCurdy, "when your court was obliged to adjourn because of the failure of the District-Attorney to have cases prepared?"

"None that I can remember," answered the Recorder. "Well do you think the efficiency of the District-Attorney's office has been improved under the present administration?"

"It has, materially," replied the Recorder. Continuing, he said that, in view of the large number of indictments found by grand juries, it would be impossible for the courts, at present constituted, to try the cases.

Recorder Smyth was asked about the Meyer case. He said it had been presented well.

Fellows Able If Industrious. "For the sake of saving time," remarked ex-Judge Van Hoesen, "I would concede that when Col. Fellows can be induced to try a case he does so ably. If I am charged with negligently then," remarked Col. Fellows, "not lack of ability alone."

The Recorder took occasion to remark that the courts try about 300 cases a month.

"There is no impeachment of the bench here," remarked ex-Judge Van Hoesen, "and no comparison of the judges."

Recorder Smyth glanced around the room and winked, with a smile that evoked a laugh.

The Recorder stated that because of the Lawton Committee report of election officers the criminal business of the courts has been greatly increased this year.

BANKER EUGENE KELLY ILL.

The Wealthy Financier Not Expected to Live Until Night.

Stricken with Paralysis and in a Very Weak Condition.

Eugene Kelly, head of the well-known banking house of Eugene Kelly & Co., of 239 Temple Court, is in a precarious condition, at his home, 33 West Fifty-first street. He was stricken with paralysis on Tuesday last. Up to that time he had been in good health.

EUGENE KELLY, SR.

Mr. Kelly passed a fairly good night, but it is reported this morning as being very weak. Owing to his extreme age his physician and friends fear he may not live until night. He is attended by Dr. McCreezy, of Lexington avenue and Thirty-seventh street, who is by his bedside almost continually.

Mr. Kelly was born in Trillick, County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1828. His parents were industrious farmers, but on account of hard times Eugene Kelly came to this country at the age of twenty, landing in New York with only $3 in his pocket.

He began his business career as clerk in the dry-goods firm of Donnelly Bros. Here he rose rapidly until the dissolution of the firm. He next tried gold mining in '40, and afterwards started the San Francisco banking-house of Donohue, Kelly & Johnston.

He moved his business to New York during the late war, and lost large sums on Southern loans. Mr. Kelly was noted for quiet philanthropy, and gave large sums to charity.

His interest in Home Rule and his gift of $30,000 to the Irish Parliamentary party in 1885, as is his honor, earned him the appointment of "cameriere de chambre" in the Pope's household.

He was a member of the Grand Lodge of the Life-Saving Benevolent Association, of New York, and is inscribed:

Medal for a Brave Policeman. John J. Bryan, of the Harbor Patrol, was given a medal this afternoon for bravery in rescuing Patrick McManus from drowning. The medal is bestowed by the Life-Saving Benevolent Association, of New York, and is inscribed:

Editor Lambert's Resignation. Several causes have been given for Rev. L. W. Lambert's resignation from the editorship of the Catholic Times. The most probable reason is said to be his quarrel with Bishop McQuaid, in whose diocese Lambert has a residence. The two have often clashed, and at one time even resorted to lay law to settle the matter before the Propaganda.

Gen. Parker Scammon Dead. Gen. Eliakim Parker Scammon died at his home in Audubon Park at 2:30 this morning, in the seventy-ninth year of his age. Gen. Scammon served with distinction in the Mexican war and Civil war, and while at West Point, was tutor to Generals Grant, Sherman and Newton, and an applicant for the grade. He leaves a widow and four daughters.

George Gould and Party in Texas. SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 7.—George Gould and party, from New York, have arrived here, and are hunting in the vicinity for the past week. They leave to-day on their return trip East.

Breckinridge Can't Lecture There. CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 7.—W. C. F. Breckinridge cannot lecture in the Cleveland Gray Academy, as the use of the place for that purpose having been refused.

Two More Newspapers Join the Army Receiving Its Service. WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Augusta (Ga.) Herald, the only afternoon paper in that city receiving telegraphic news reports, has withdrawn from the Southern Associated Press service, and has signed a ninety-year contract with the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 7.—The Norfolk Ledger, the leading afternoon paper in that city, receives its news from the Associated Press. It has this to say of the Associated Press report published by the Richmond Star:

"Our contemporary, the Richmond Star, had the latest telegraphic report yesterday of an attempt to put us in the Southern States outside of New Orleans."

The Elmira (N. Y.) Morning Sun, a newly daily paper at Elmira, has signed a ninety-year contract for the Associated Press service, and has begun receiving the full report of the Associated Press at once.

PANIC IN A POLICY SHOP. Women Jumped from Windows to Avoid Arrest.

John Hill of 48 South Third street, was held for trial in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, on a charge of selling policy slips.

The police of the Bedford avenue station heard that Hill was selling slips, and yesterday afternoon a squad of officers raided his apartments.

The sight of the uniforms created a panic. Two women jumped out of the windows into the street, a distance of ten feet, and two others started to get out, but became frightened while hanging in the air and fell back into the room.

Mr. Hill, fainting after having an attack of hysterics, and all in all there was the wildest kind of excitement in the room, while a crowd followed Hill to the police station. None of the players was arrested.

CLOAKMAKERS STARVING. There is Nothing at Their Supply Depot but Coffee.

Three hundred and fifty families of the striking cloakmakers are said to be in a starving condition. There was not even a loaf of bread in the little depot at 125 Ludlow street when a reporter from "The Evening World" called there this morning and found Delegate George W. Jones, of the Central Labor Union, wrapping up a tumblerful of ground coffee in each of a hundred small paper bags.

"Coffee is all I have here," said Mr. Jones. "There is not a loaf of bread, and I have no money with which to purchase supplies."

NEW STYLES IN SHOES. Bewildering Display for Ladies' Wear at Cammeyer's.

The style in shoes this season, especially in ladies' wear, is more marked than usual, and the display in the large establishments show a greater assortment than for some years. At A. J. Cammeyer's, Sixth avenue and Twelfth street, the largest retail shoe establishment in the world, the display is particularly attractive.

Among the ladies' wear the light colored tan with Bordeaux calf, has a particular run. They are heavier than those of last season, with a double sole, and can be worn in every kind of weather. The six-button shoe is still worn, especially the dress shoe with cloth top, patent-leather and Caledonia tip.

The Russian calf and Morocco driving shoe for ladies is greatly worn, while the Louis XV. is going out of date. Those that are worn are lower in the heel.

Cammeyer's display of ladies' and misses' slippers is both large and beautiful, and includes satins, sandals and Oxford ties in all evening shades, with bows, buckles and rosettes to match. Over these are worn the ear-rolls of cloth, velvet and maline, with fur trimmings and flaps.

The display in evening black and brown is also extensive. The new feature is the Regent. It is made of patent-leather with high tongue extending over the instep and buttons at the side. They are also duplicated in satin.

The display in the gentlemen's department is well worth seeing. The high standard of work is shown in each shoe in fulfillment of the well-known motto: "Cammeys' shoes are made to last."

DON'T BE ALARMED. If the fact that you have been "torn down" by the "New York Evening World" is a cause for alarm, you are not alone. The "New York Evening World" is a well-known and respected newspaper, and its reports are always accurate and reliable.
